The Tax Cuts and Jobs Act of 2017

On December 22, 2017, the President signed the Tax Cuts and Jobs Act of 2017 ("TCJA"), which marked the largest tax act since the Tax Reform Act of 1986. It brought about many, many personal changes, a few of which are mentioned here. Most of the changes were in effect for 2018 filings, and expire on 12/31/2025 unless extended by future legislation.

Here is some discussion of how changes impact your 2019 tax return in some specific tax areas.

- Alimony. New for 2019, alimony paid is not deductible if it is under an agreement entered into or substantially modified after 2018. Alimony paid under pre-2019 agreements remain deductible. You will now need to provide the date of the agreement to claim a deduction. Whether alimony received is taxable income follows the same rules – it is income for the recipient if it's a deduction for the payor.

- Medical deductions. For 2019, medical deductions need to exceed 10% of your adjusted gross income before there is a tax benefit, and then it is only for the amount in excess of this limit. Previously, this limit was 7.5%. Then, the larger standard deduction needs to be exceeded before there is any true tax savings.
- Itemized versus standard deductions. The doubling of the standard deduction combined with the limit on deduction for state and local taxes means that many more of our clients will face the standard deduction than ever before. This changes many historical concepts of tax planning, such as whether to prepay state taxes owed by year-end.
- Charitable contributions.
 - For charitable commitments, use of a “donor-advised fund” will allow taxpayers to deduct multiple years’ charitable contributions in the itemizing year, while spending amounts from the fund to meet charitable obligations in the standard deduction year.
 - The higher standard deduction means that for those taxpayers over age 70-1/2 with IRA balances, use of a charitable IRA distribution is more powerful than ever. Be careful with the requirements here and the result is a deduction allowed without having to itemize. See a further discussion of this later in the “retirement plan rules” section.
- Bunching. Clients may benefit from “bunching”, meaning planning on itemizing every other year and compressing deductions into the itemizing year, while relying on the standard deduction in the off year.
- Health insurance penalty. New for 2019, the penalty for failure to carry personal health insurance is zero.

Contact us if you want to discuss how any of these changes affect your personal situation.

General tax environment

The IRS continues to send out computer-generated notices based on computer-based document-matching processes. Since IRS notices generated in this way are sometimes incorrect, you should consult with us about the appropriate response. Never ignore an IRS notice – it will not go away. Deal with it promptly to reduce any penalties and interest that may accrue.

IRS adjusts tax amounts for inflation

The estate tax exemption was doubled as part of the TCJA. For 2019, the estate tax exemption is now $11.40 million (compared to $11.18 million in 2018). This doubling is part of the personal tax changes discussed earlier that expire on 12/31/2025. The exemption will increase by another $180,000 in 2020 to $11.58 million. Together, a married couple can pass a 2019 estate valued at $22.80 million to their heirs without paying federal estate tax because of the portability provision. It is estimated that now 99.8% of all estates will not owe the estate tax, but the need for proper planning is still present to make sure that this works as intended for you. This transfer amount is reduced during your lifetime by taxable gift tax transactions, so your total estate tax exemption could be less if taxable gifts have occurred in the past.

The annual gift tax exclusion remains at $15,000 per recipient in 2019 ($30,000 if married and using a gift-splitting election, or if each spouse uses separate funds). By maximizing the use of these gifts annually, taxpayers can transfer significant wealth out of their estate without using any of their lifetime estate exemption.

Taxpayers who have a health savings account (HSA) under a high-deductible health plan (HDHP) have a contribution limit this year of $7,000 for a family, an increase of $100 from 2018. The single contribution limit is increased to $3,500, compared to $3,450 in 2018. Taxpayers are allowed an additional $1,000 contribution if you are age 55 or older. To be considered an HDHP, out-of-pocket maximums of $6,750 per individual ($6,650 in 2018) and $13,500 for a family ($13,300 in 2018) apply. Minimum deductibles are $1,350 per individual and $2,700 for a family.

Retirement plan rules

A good tax strategy is to participate in your employer's 401(k) plan. You may elect to contribute up to $19,000 for 2019 before taxes, and the additional catch-up contribution for employees who are age 50 and above is $6,000. Refer to your employer's plan to confirm that the catch-up contribution is permitted. These increased contribution limits also apply to 403(b) plans and most 457 plans. The under age 50 deferral amount was $18,500 in 2018.

Some 401(k) plans allow you to make an after-tax Roth contribution, which will not reduce your current taxable income. However, you generally will not owe tax on qualified distributions when these funds are withdrawn in retirement. Note that if you make the maximum retirement deferral possible, you are actually deferring more with a Roth 401(k) because, economically, you are actually contributing both the deferral and the tax on the deferral.

The IRA contribution limit has increased for 2019 to $6,000, with an additional $1,000 catch-up contribution allowed for people 50 years of age or older.

For those with a SIMPLE plan, the deferral increased for 2019 from $12,500 to $13,000, with an additional $3,000 catch-up contribution.

You or your spouse must have earned income to contribute to either a traditional or a Roth IRA. Only taxpayers with modified AGI below $203,000 joint and $137,000 single are permitted to contribute to a Roth IRA. If a workplace retirement plan covers you or your spouse, modified AGI also controls your ability to deduct your contribution to a traditional IRA, which ends at $203,000 joint.

There is no AGI limit on your or your spouse's deduction if neither of you are covered by an employer plan. But if either of you are covered by an employer plan, and your modified AGI falls within the phase-out range, a partial contribution/deduction could still be allowed.

If you would like to contribute to a Roth IRA, but your income exceeds the threshold, consider making a non-deductible contribution to a traditional IRA for 2019 by April 15, 2020, and then later convert the regular IRA to a Roth IRA. Consult with your DMJ professional about the tax consequences of the conversion, especially if you have funds in other traditional IRAs, as this could dramatically change the tax impact.

Please do not forget that you may make only one IRA-to-IRA indirect rollover per year, which must be re-deposited within 60 days. This does not limit direct rollovers from trustee to trustee. Any attempted rollover after the first one will be treated as a withdrawal and taxed at regular rates – with potentially a 10 percent early withdrawal penalty. This attempted rollover re-contribution will be subject to regular IRA contribution limits, meaning that, if the amount of funds in the account exceeds your contribution limit, it will be subject to a 6 percent excise tax.

When you reach age 70-1/2, you are required to begin taking required minimum distributions (RMDs) from your IRAs and other retirement accounts. Roth IRAs are not subject to this rule. We can assist with the computation of the minimum amount needed to withdraw. For the first year only (if you turn age 70-1/2 in 2019), you have a grace period to take the initial 2019 year withdrawal until April 1, 2020. Often this is not a good idea, because a second withdrawal for 2020 would still need to be done by December 31, 2020, resulting in two taxable retirement withdrawals subject to income tax in one year, potentially at higher tax rates. Also, these rules mandate the minimum to withdraw annually after age 70-1/2 – there is no maximum for these taxpayers.

For RMDs from retirement accounts that are inherited (including Roth IRAs), a completely different set of rules apply, and most taxpayers cannot wait until age 70-1/2. Consult with us if you are unsure of what action is required.

Remember also that the provision that allowed an individual who is at least 70-1/2 years old to make a qualified charitable distribution of up to $100,000 from an IRA directly to a charity has been made permanent. This distribution to charity can satisfy all or part of your RMD requirement. This is generally a good idea for taxpayers who (1) are subject to the RMD rules, and (2) have charitable commitments to satisfy. It's also a good plan where the taxpayers cannot itemize deductions, or receive little benefit from doing so, due to high standard deductions, the house is paid for, etc. It is arguably a better idea to first use long-term significantly appreciated stock for your charitable giving if you can itemize (discussed later in this letter), but a charitable IRA distribution is also a good idea.

Self-employed individuals can have a Simplified Employee Pension (SEP) plan. They may contribute as much as 20 percent of their net earnings from self-employment, not including contributions to themselves. The contribution limit is $56,000 in 2019. The self-employed may set up a SEP plan as late as the due date, including extensions, of their 2019 income tax return.

An individual, or solo, 401(k) is another option for the self-employed. For 2019, a self-employed individual, as an employee, may defer up to $19,000 ($25,000 for age 50 or older) of annual compensation (an increase of $500 from 2018). Acting as the employer, the individual may contribute 25 percent of net profits, including the deferred $19,000, up to a maximum contribution of $56,000.

Make the most of long-term capital gains

- While avoiding or deferring tax may be your primary goal, to the extent there is income to report, the income of choice is long-term capital gain (more than one year holding period) thanks to the favorable tax rates available. Short-term capital gain is taxed at your ordinary income tax rate.
- If you hold a capital asset for more than one year before selling it, your capital gain is long-term. For many taxpayers, long-term capital gain is taxed at rates no higher than 15 percent, plus state tax.
 - But taxpayers with income below certain limits have a long-term capital gains tax rate of 0 percent – see the chart below. This is a significant benefit for taxpayers of lower income, perhaps including your children.
 - Taxpayers whose income exceeds the thresholds set for the now-repealed 39.6 percent ordinary tax rate are subject to a 20 percent rate on capital gain. See the chart below.
 - If the long-term capital gains rates of 0, 15, or 20 percent are not complicated enough, keep in mind that special rates of 25 percent can apply to certain real estate, and 28 percent to certain collectibles. Also, gains on the sale of certain C corporations held for more than five years can qualify for a 0 percent rate if certain tests are met (see next bullet). Talk to your tax advisor before you assume which long-term capital gains rate would apply. In any event, the 3.8% tax on Net Investment Income could also apply in addition to these capital gains rates.

- The sale of certain stock could produce a gain that can be partially or entirely excluded from federal income by rule. This is known as Section 1202 stock, or qualified small business (“QSB”) stock. Talk to us if you think you have this type of gain.
 - The tests to qualify include –
 - The corporation must be a domestic C-corporation, and the stock must be issued after 8/9/1993 and held for at least five years.
 - All times from 8/9/1993 and through the date of issuance of stock, the gross assets of the corporation must not have exceeded $50 million. Also immediately after issuance, aggregate gross assets must not exceed $50 million.
 - The stock must have been acquired directly from the issuer (not from another stockholder).
 - At least 80% of the corporation’s assets must have been used in the active conduct of a trade or business, during substantially all of the shareholder’s holding period.
 - At least 80% of the assets of the corporation must be used in one or more qualified businesses, which excludes banking/finance, farming, mining/oil, hotels and restaurants, and professional services or similar businesses where the principal asset is the reputation or skill of one or more employee.
 - If these tests are met, the gain on sale of the stock can be excluded as follows, depending on when the stock is acquired –
 - If acquired after 8/9/1993 and before 2/18/2009, the exclusion is 50%.
 - If acquired after 2/17/2009 and before 9/28/2010, the exclusion is 75%.
 - If acquired after 9/27/2010, the exclusion is 100%.
 - The gain available for exclusion is limited to the greater of –
 - $10 million (reduced by eligible gain taken in prior years), and
 - 10 times the basis of the QSB stock sold during that year.
- Remember that you can use capital losses, including worthless securities and bad debts, to offset capital gains. If capital losses exceed capital gains during the year, you can offset ordinary income by up to $3,000 of your losses. Then you can carry forward any capital losses in excess of a net of $3,000 into the next tax year.
- You should be careful not to violate the “wash sale” rule by buying an asset nearly identical to the one you sold at a loss within 30 days before or after the sale. Otherwise, the wash sale rule will prevent you from claiming the loss immediately. While wash sale losses are deferred, wash sale gains are fully taxable. It is important to discuss the meaning of “nearly” or “substantially” identical assets with your tax advisor.

Long-Term Capital Gains Rate Brackets

	Single	Joint	Head of Household	Trusts
0% bracket	$0 – $39,375	$0 - $78,750	$0 - $52,750	$0 - $2,650
15% bracket begins	$39,376	$78,751	$52,751	$2,651
20% bracket begins	$434,551	$488,851	$461,701	$12,951

Note that the 3.8% tax on Net Investment Income may also apply. Also consider state income tax.

Charitable deductions

As most taxpayers are aware, federal tax law allows a deduction for contributions made to qualified IRS tax-exempt organizations. Before making such contributions, however, you should become familiar with some of the laws and limitations on contributions so you can maximize the tax benefit of the deduction.

The contribution must be made to a qualified IRS tax-exempt organization. The IRS maintains an online tool (<http://tinyurl.com/a72f74x>) that simplifies the search for organizations that meet the criteria.

It should be noted that churches are generally not on this list as they are automatically exempt. Also note that nonprofit status is granted by the state when the organization applies for its corporate charter as a nonprofit organization. Tax-exempt status is granted by the IRS upon application, after formative approval by the state.

The donor cannot exercise undue control over the contribution. For example, you cannot make a contribution to a church, specifying that the funds be used to pay the medical bills of a good friend. A contribution may be made to the church benevolent fund with an expressed preference that the funds be used to help your friend, but the request may not be a condition of the gift.

The contribution must be made by December 31 of that year. A check mailed with a December 31 postmark is acceptable. A credit card charge is deductible when charged, not when the credit card bill is paid. The organization cannot “hold the books open” for a few days after the end of the year and credit those contributions to the year just ended. Be sure to keep a receipt of all contributions of $250 or more.

There are limitations on the amount of charitable contributions that you may deduct. For individuals, the limit is 60 percent of AGI or 30 percent of AGI if the donation is capital gain property. Any excess may be carried over for up to five future years. Contributions may also be limited if the qualified organization is not considered by the IRS to be a 60 percent limit organization. This includes contributions to veterans' organizations, fraternal societies, nonprofit cemeteries, and certain private nonoperating foundations. Contributions made to these organizations are subject to a limit of 30 percent of AGI or 20 percent of AGI if the donation is capital gain. At the website listed above, the IRS indicates whether or not contributions to certain organizations are subject to these additional limitations.

It is a good strategy to keep a running list of your charitable contributions so you can be prepared to speed up or delay any contributions to maximize your deductions. Along this same line, keeping tabs on your total income for the year, in case you will be subject to the phase-out provisions, will enable you to plan properly.

If you plan to contribute appreciated capital gain property, you will achieve the maximum benefit if the property is long-term – property held for more than 12 months.

- You can normally deduct the fair market value of the contribution rather than the cost basis. If held for 12 months or less, the deduction is limited to the basis in the property.
- Even if you want to keep the investment, consider gifting the qualifying property and using your charitable cash to purchase a replacement investment. You would be made whole, with a new 12-month long-term holding period to meet, but you have increased your investment basis in the meantime.

Don't give securities that have depreciated, as your deduction is limited to the lower fair market value. You would be better to sell the security, take your loss, and contribute the net cash to charity.

While those over age 70-1/2 can direct IRA withdrawals to charity, which can work well, arguably the gift of appreciated stock is an even better idea since you get a full deduction without reporting the appreciation as income. But with the expanded standard deduction in place, remember that you must be able to itemize for this plan to work.

Before making such a contribution, you should ascertain that the property does qualify for deduction of the fair market value and is, in fact, appreciated property.

This overview provides some of the laws and strategies for deriving the maximum tax benefit from charitable contributions. Before making significant contributions, you would be wise to consult with us to assure that you are maximizing the benefit.

Timing income and expenses can be important tax reduction strategy

The new tax rates from the TCJA are about the same in 2018 versus 2019 and 2020, with modest adjustments for inflation. So deferring income and accelerating deductions benefits you primarily by delaying the time when the tax is due. But it does not significantly change the amount of tax unless your net taxable income is dramatically different in one of these years. In that case, try to focus the deductions on the higher income year(s), and to trigger the income in the lower income year(s). So defer income into next year and accelerate deductions into this year if you expect to be in a lower tax bracket through 2025 under current law. But if the reverse is your expectation, consider accelerating the income into 2019 and deferring deductions into the future.

Income that you could delay into 2020 include:

- Collecting rents
- Receiving payments for services
- Accepting a year-end bonus
- Collecting business debts

But be careful of constructive receipt rules, which say that the amount is income when you could have received it but chose not to.

And if you itemize deductions, consider prepaying some of your 2020 tax-deductible expenses in 2019.

Individuals usually account for taxes using the cash method. As a cash method taxpayer, you can deduct expenses when you pay them or charge them to your credit card. Expenses paid by credit card are considered paid in the year they are incurred, so this may be a way to accelerate deductions if you do not have the cash to do so.

These lower tax rates remain through 2025 under current law. If you believe that rates will revert to the old system in 2026, consider Roth 401(k)s and Roth IRAs while rates are lower, and the benefits of the deduction are lower.

In addition to charitable contributions discussed earlier, you should decide whether it would be beneficial for you to prepay the following expenses:

- State and local income taxes – You may prepay any state and local income taxes normally due on January 15, 2020, if you do not expect to be subject to the AMT in 2019, or limited by the $10,000 cap on tax deductions. If either of these limitations apply, the long-standing strategy of prepaying your state taxes simply no longer works.
- Real estate taxes – You can prepay in 2019 any real estate tax due early in 2020. But the same limitations apply as in the prior point.
- Mortgage interest – Your ability to deduct prepaid interest has limits. But, to the extent your January mortgage payment reflects interest accrued as of December 31, 2019, a payment before year end will secure the interest deduction in 2019. However, note that this technique really only works once. Deducting a 13th monthly payment in 2019 leaves you only 11 payments to deduct in 2020, thus you are forced to continue to prepay the next January payment just to keep 12 months of deductions in future years.
- Margin interest – If you bought securities on margin, any interest accrued as of December 31, 2019, will be deductible in 2019 only if you actually pay the interest by December 31 (subject to the investment interest limitation rules).

Stay on top of your tax payments

If you expect to be subject to an underpayment penalty for failure to pay your 2019 tax liability on a timely basis, consider increasing your withholding between now and the end of the year to reduce or eliminate the penalty. Increasing your final estimated tax deposit due January 15, 2020, may reduce the amount of the penalty, but is unlikely to eliminate it entirely.

Withholding, even if done on the last day of the tax year, is deemed withheld ratably throughout the tax year. For federal taxes, underpayment penalties can be avoided when total withholdings and estimated tax payments exceed the 2018 tax liability, or in the case of higher-income taxpayers, 110 percent of 2018 tax. Ask us which rule applies to you. For NC tax, the rule is the same except you can replace “110 percent of 2018 tax” with “100 percent.”

North Carolina Taxes

For NC residents, your personal income tax rate will be 5.25% in 2019, reduced from 5.499% in 2018. The basic mechanics of the computation of taxable income will be similar to 2018. Looking forward, no noteworthy changes in the tax system are on the horizon at this time.

Conclusion

The U.S. Tax Code is incredibly complex and can change rapidly, even though it may sometimes seem to be moving along at a snail's pace. This complexity has given rise to more calls for simplification, such as in the Tax Cuts and Jobs Act of 2017. This Act made the Code simpler in some ways, but more complicated in others.

With such complexity in the tax code, a CPA is better able to keep abreast of the changes and can prepare taxes in a manner that determines a taxpayer's minimum legal tax liability. But minimizing tax liability started last week, last month, last year. Tax planning is a constant in today's complex world.
